YON IS SOUTHEASTERN FARMER OF THE YEAR

2018 SWISHER SWEETS / SUNBELT EXPO

Kevin Yon, a highly successful purebred Angus beef cattle producer and a leader in beef cattle and Angus breed organizations, has been selected as the overall winner of the Swisher Sweets/Sunbelt Expo Southeastern Farmer of the Year award for 2018.

Yon was named to this prestigious honor at a luncheon held during the opening day of the 2018 Sunbelt Ag Expo farm show in Moultrie, Ga. He was chosen as Farmer of the Year over nine other state winners.

Yon, a son and grandson of sharecroppers and a first-generation Angus breeder, lives in Ridge Spring. His farm encompasses 4,258 acres with 2,515 acres of rented land and 1,743 acres of family owned land.

Each year, the Yons sell about 375 bulls and 150 females in two on-farm sales. They also sell cattle in private treaty sales. Their herd includes about 1,200 registered breeding age females, 590 commercial breeding age females and 90 steers and heifers that are fed out.

The Yons retain ownership on calves not sold for breeding, and feed most of them in a Kansas feedlot. They also feed out calves on their farm that are marketed through an Augusta, Ga., processing facility.

Forages are among the most extensive plantings on Yon's farm. He has successfully grown alfalfa, and he has become a new grower of soybeans and pecans. The Yons own a retail store in Ridge Spring where they sell pecans and beef from their farm, along with other South Carolina-grown products.

His farm is named Yon Family Farms, and family involvement is a key to this farm's success. His wife Lydia is a full partner with Kevin. The Yons are especially proud that their three children and two of their children's spouses have come back to work on the home farm. They have a daughter, Sally, and two sons, Drake and Corbin.

Kevin, Drake, and Corbin are all active in the Ridge Spring Volunteer Fire Department. Sally works on the farm in marketing and in taking daily care of the cattle. Her husband Reid Harrison contributes with his knowledge of genetics and performance data.

Sons Corbin and Drake manage the pecans and the row crops. Drake's wife Nicole is a registered dietician and helps manage the pecan grove and the retail store.

The Farmer of the Year award, now in its 29th year, recognizes excellence in agricultural production and farm management, along with leadership in farm and community organizations. The winner was selected by three judges who visited the farms of all 10 state winners.

"Kevin exemplifies South Carolina agriculture to the core and I'm very pleased his leadership in the state's largest industry was recognized," said SC Commissioner of Agriculture Hugh Weathers. "Receiving this recognition is a tremendous honor and I couldn't be happier for Kevin and the entire Yon Family Farms operation."

John Miller, president and chief executive officer of Swisher International Inc., of Jacksonville, Fla., praised Yon for his farming accomplishments. "Kevin is an outstanding farmer who has become a role model for others who want to farm," said Miller.

Kevin Yon is known for the exceptional quality of his Angus cattle.

RIVALRY WITH A CAUSE

Last month I wrote about attending the Wall Street Journal Global Food Forum in New York. During that gathering of leaders in the global food industry, I attended a session on food waste presented by an executive with ReFED, a nonprofit network of businesses, nonprofits, and government leaders committed to reducing food waste in the United States.

It's a lofty goal; estimates tell us that 40 percent of the food grown in the U.S. is wasted somewhere along the way, and the estimated cost of food waste is more than $200 billion. That's twice the profits of grocery retailers in this country. It's even more mindboggling when you consider the hunger and poverty in this country.

Right here in South Carolina, one in six families doesn't know where its next meal will come from, and one in five children goes to bed hungry every night. With November upon us and the holidays around the corner, hunger and poverty should strike a particularly resonant tone with all of us who are more fortunate. That's why the Palmetto Series food drive is such a worthy cause and competition. Collected food donations between Carolina and Clemson will be weighed in, and all dollars donated will be converted to a number of pounds via an equation. The university that raises the most donations in non-perishable foods will earn a point for their school. Keep in mind, Gamecock and Tiger fans, this has a value in the outcome of the Palmetto Series equal to the winner of the football game on November 24.

The food drive kicked off on October 29 and continues through November 18. You might recall that this is the fourth year of the Palmetto Series competition between USC and Clemson throughout the school year. The schools earn points by winning athletic events, and the team with the most points at the end of the year wins the Palmetto Series title and trophy. Certified SC Grown is the proud sponsor of this competition.

Even if your team doesn't win the big game coming up at the end of the month, it could win the food drive if you get involved. Clemson fans can donate non-perishable food to collection points at various BI-LO grocery stores and at locations on the Clemson campus. BI-LO sites in Columbia are collection sites for Carolina fans, as are certain locations on the USC campus. The beneficiaries of this worthy drive are Golden Harvest Food Bank and Harvest Hope Food Bank.

If you don't live in the Clemson or Columbia area, you might not be able to participate in the Palmetto Series, but you could donate to any food bank near you to serve those in need. I hope you will.

DENVER DOWNS HOSTS WAR REENACTMENTS

Denver Downs Farm in Anderson will host its annual Military Weekend on November 2- 4. It features exciting re-enactments of several wars, including the Revolutionary War, Civil War, Vietnam, and both World Wars. A real-life encampment is also on-site, which will include women dressed in 1800s attire. In the war reenactments, men dressed in Civil War period clothing man battle lines, shoot rifles, and fire cannons.

The Military Timeline Weekend combines both the farm’s heritage and U.S. military heritage. W.D. Garrison, a Civil War veteran, is the great-grandfather of Catherine Garrison Davis, a co-owner of Denver Downs. He bought the farm in 1869. His grandson, Ed Garrison Jr., was part of the “War Class” from the 1942 class of Clemson College and was a Bomber Pilot in the South Pacific during World War II.

“Of all the themed weekends we host every season, this is not only one of my favorites, but a favorite weekend for all our guests,” said Catherine. “Our guests can see history in action and experience something totally unique and memorable.”

For school groups, families, and homeschoolers, Education Day will take place on Friday, November 2 from 10 am - 3 pm, with timeline displays, talks with reenactors plus all the barnyard activities and corn maze at the farm.

On Saturday and Sunday, the timeline will continue with Civil War reenactments at 3 pm each day. The encampment areas and displays for each of the war eras will be open Saturday from 10 am-10 pm and Sunday from 1-6 pm.

SC AGRIBIZ EXPO CELEBRATES AGRICULTURE

FLORENCE – The 2019 annual SC AgriBiz & Farm Expo is set for Jan. 23 and 24 at the newly updated Florence Center. Promoters promise two days of non-stop action.

“With expanded space to offer additional educational classes and increased vendor spaces, the expo continues to grow. We offer opportunities for all types of farmers and farm-related enterprises,” said executive director Jody Martin.

The expo will again feature several tracks so that farmers and non-farmers can choose what they want to learn. Row crops, fruits and vegetables, women in ag, and youth are all represented. In addition, CAMM training is again being offered.

The expo’s keynote speaker is Michele Payn of Cause Matters Corp. According to her website, Michele challenges people to meet at the intersection of farm and food, head and heart. She brings clarity and common sense to nutrition, health and agriculture.

Michele will celebrate agriculture as well as help each farmer – large or small – become an advocate for agriculture. She helps people connect with others in order to have those difficult conversations relative to animal welfare, sustainability, chemicals and GMOs.

On the trade show floor, hundreds of professionals will showcase their products and share information that will help each farmer address challenges in the field.

FALL WASTE PESTICIDE COLLECTIONS

South Carolina residents can safely dispose of unwanted pesticides at any of four upcoming waste collections.

The program is open to all pesticide applicators in the state, as well as homeowners. SCDA staff will be on site to monitor pesticide collection and disposal. Chemical and pesticide quantities will be limited to 2,500 pounds of solid and 300 gallons of liquid waste.

- Pesticide products accepted include herbicides, insecticides, nematocides, fungicides and similar products.
- Fertilizer will not be accepted unless it is combined with a pesticide such as weed and feed.
- No compressed gas cylinders or empty pesticide containers will be collected.

Collection events may be canceled due to inclement weather and will be posted on SCDA’s website (agriculture.sc.gov). For information contact SCDA’s John Stokes at 803-737-9696 or jstokes@scda.sc.gov.

NEW DIRECTOR NAMED AT EDISTO REC

BLACKVILLE – A plant scientist and third-generation farmer who has worked in Clemson agriculture more than 20 years has been named permanent director of a Clemson University research facility that develops high-tech solutions for reducing water, pesticide and nutrient use in agriculture.

Christopher Ray is the new director of Clemson’s Edisto Research and Education Center in Blackville. He has served as interim director since March. Ray is replacing the retiring John Mueller, who directed the Edisto REC for 10 years.

Ray has filled a number of roles at Clemson. His experience as an administrator and his roots as a farmer give him a unique understanding of the importance of the land-grant mission in the success of South Carolina’s agribusiness industry.

“Because I was born to a family of farmers, I understand deeply the impact that Clemson has on the agriculture industry in our state, as well as regionally, nationally and internationally. The Edisto REC is doing important work, particularly as it relates to developing technology that helps farmers lower costs and improve efficiency,” Ray said.

In addition to its role in developing high-tech precision agricultural solutions, the Edisto REC also researches better ways to grow and harvest crops, raise beef cattle and conserve natural resources. It is home to a number of variety trials and field days, including Watermelon Field Day, Cotton and Soybean Field Day, Peanut Field Day and Edisto Forage Bull Test.

VERSATILE PUMPKINS CAN BE USED ON THE TABLE OR OFF

What do you do with pumpkins after Halloween? Lots of things! Besides using them for your fall decorations—which could last through Thanksgiving—you can also make lots of great food items. From roasted pumpkin seeds to delectable tea breads to curried pumpkin soup, this versatile vegetable will add flavor and color to your table.

Here’s an old favorite with a twist, or try a new dish for your holiday table.

CURRIED PUMPKIN SOUP

- | | |
|---|-------------------------------------|
| INGREDIENTS | |
| • ½ pound fresh mushrooms, sliced | • 1 can (12 ounces) evaporated milk |
| • ½ cup chopped onion | • 1 tablespoon honey |
| • 2 tablespoons butter | • ½ teaspoon salt |
| • 2 tablespoons all-purpose flour | • ¼ teaspoon pepper |
| • 3 cups vegetable broth | • ½ to 1 teaspoon curry powder |
| • 1 can (15 ounces) solid-pack pumpkin (or fresh) | • ¼ teaspoon ground nutmeg |
| | • Minced chives, optional |

DIRECTIONS
In a large saucepan, saute the mushrooms and onion in butter until tender. Stir in the flour and curry powder until blended. Gradually add the broth.

Bring to a boil; cook and stir for 2 minutes or until thickened. Add the pumpkin, milk, honey, salt, pepper and nutmeg; heat through. Garnish with chives if desired.

All pumpkins are edible, but some taste better than others. If you’re looking for the best pumpkin for cooking, go with a small pumpkin that feels heavy for its size.

PERFECT PUMPKIN PIE

- | | |
|----------------------------------|--|
| INGREDIENTS | DIRECTIONS |
| • 2 cups cooked pumpkin | Preheat oven to 425° F. Whisk pumpkin, sweetened condensed milk, eggs, spices and salt in medium bowl until smooth. Pour into crust. Bake 15 minutes. |
| • 1 cup sugar | |
| • ½ tsp. salt | Reduce oven temperature to 350° F and continue baking 35 to 40 minutes or until knife inserted 1 inch from crust comes out clean. Cool. Serve with whipped cream if desired. |
| • 1 tsp. cinnamon | |
| • 1 tsp. ginger | |
| • ½ tsp. nutmeg | |
| • 1 can sweetened condensed milk | |
| • 2 large eggs, beaten | |
- NOTE
Some cooks substitute pumpkin pie spice for the other spices; some like graham cracker crusts; and some use canned pumpkin.
